Duck Sense For Parents

Stop the Bullying

Here is an interactive parenting program that has received high marks at the Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals Association 2005 State Conference. Richard mixes his humorous lecturing style with quick, group-energizing activities that are cleverly designed to develop strategies that can be implemented both at school and a home.

"He kept everyone involved so we could use one another as resources in addition to the tips and suggestions he shared during his session." Linda Pearl, MEMSA, Room Chair

Richard continues to study and research bullying and school violence. He is currently working toward professional certification and striving to become an expert in this field. The program will explain what a bully and a victim are and the myths behind the labels. Most importantly it offers up solutions and resolutions to this crisis that has tarnished schools and created fearful students for decades.

Parents will learn:

- How to locate the best source of information as to what is really going on in the school
- The seriousness of bullying and how it can scar a person for a lifetime
- Develop a plan of action for parents, staff and students

Bully-Proofing Skills and Strategies

They will be given tips on instituting a parent/student team. This will help reduce emotional strain and self-empower students by promoting non-violent ways of resolving a conflict.

Success Stories

Sharing success stories and programs that have put an end to bullying and helped create a safe-foundation by which students feel less threatened and fearful.
